

Johann Ernst IV. von Sachsen-Weimar: Concerti

aud 97.769

EAN: 4022143977694

www.amazon.com (2019.09.03)

source: https://www.amazon.com/-/de/Concerti-THU...

This is an exceptional recording of some exceptional music. Prince Johann Ernst IV (1696-1715) was known as the "Thüringian Vivaldi." Ernst showed musical talent at a young age. He composed nineteen works, all within nine months of his death at age 18.

But there's more to the story. His primary teacher was Johann Gottfried Walther. Walther's cousin, Johann Sebastian Bach arrived in Weimar in 1707 as court organist.

Ernst had a substantial collection of Vivaldi's music. which he carefully studied. Bach would create keyboard transcriptions from those Vivaldi works, as well as some of Ernst's concertos. Georg Phillip Teleman also took an interest in the young composer, editing and publishing six of his violin concertos as Ernst's Op. 1.

That publication makes up the bulk of this new release. Also included are two additional violin concertos (one for 2 violins), and a trumpet concerto.

Ernst thoroughly absorbed Vivaldi's style. The works are all in three brief movements, alternating fas-slow-fast. They also mimic Vivaldi's use of ritornello and extended sequences.

While the structure may have come from Italy, the music is original to Ernst. Some of these, through Bach's transcriptions, are already regarded as masterworks. The Op. 1, No. 1 Concerto is Bach's BWV 982; the Concerto in G major is BWV 592; the Concerto in C major is BWV 595.

Hearing these concertos in their original form is a revelation. To me, it's apparent that Bach didn't need to "fix-up" his source material. Ernst's concertos are both original in content and skillfully composed.

The Thüringer Bach Collegium perform on period instruments. The ensemble has a somewhat gritty sound I find completely authentic. There are also moments of great beauty, especially in the slow movements.

The ensemble delivers this music with all the energy and enthusiasm one imagines a teenager would invest in his work – even one who was racing against time.

Audite's announced the ensemble's second release will be compositions by Johann

m.	Kiraves321
	★ A German Visubility of in the Limited States on Sentember 5, 2019.
	in exceptional recording of some exceptional music. Prince Johann Erroll 17 (1696-1711) was known as the months	of his death at age 16.
But the	e's more to the story. His primary bascher was Johann Gottfred Walther, Walther's cousin, Johann Sebastis	in Bach arrived in Weimar in 1707 as court organist.
fired he	d a substantial collection of shalid's music, which he carefully studied, Bach would create leyboard ptions from those Vivald works, as well as some of Emet's concertor, Georg Philip Teleman also took an interest	in the young composer, editing and publishing six of his violin concertor as Erroi's Cp. 1.
that pu	bloaton makes up the bulk of this new release. Also included are two additional violin concertos (one for stoline).	and a trumpet concerts.
timet the	oroughly absorbed should's style. The works are all in three brief movements, alternating for-sine-flait.
They ab	o minst shaldts use of ritornello and extended sequences.
Minda ti	e ctructure may have come from Italy, the music is original to Ernot. Some of these, through Bach's ptions, are already regarded as medianworks. The Cp. 1, No. 1 Concerto is Bach's BMV SEC; the Concerto is 6 major	is BWV 552, the Concerto in C major is BWV 595.
Hearing	these concertor in their original form is a revelation. To me, it's apparent that Bach-didn't need to "the-up" his sour	or material. Erroll's concentre are both original in content and skillfully composed.
	ringer Bach Collegium perform on period instruments. The ensemble has a somewhat gritty usund I find complet	sty authentic. There are also moments of great beauty, especially in the slow movements.
	emble delivers this must with all the energy and enthusions one imagines a beerager would invest in his mork	men one who was racing against time.
auditor.	announced the ensemble's second release will be compositions by Johann Bernhard Bach, second country

Bernhard Bach, second cousin to Johann Sebastian. I'm in.

★★★☆☆ A German Vivaldi

Reviewed in the United States on September 3, 2019

This is an exceptional recording of some exceptional music. Prince Johann Ernst IV (1696-1715) was known as the "Thüringian Vivaldi." Ernst showed musical talent at a young age. He composed nineteen works, all within nine months of his death at age 18.

But there's more to the story. His primary teacher was Johann Gottfried Walther. Walther's cousin, Johann Sebastian Bach arrived in Weimar in 1707 as court organist.

Ernst had a substantial collection of Vivaldi's music. which he carefully studied. Bach would create keyboard transcriptions from those Vivaldi works, as well as some of Ernst's concertos. Georg Phillip Teleman also took an interest in the young composer, editing and publishing six of his violin concertos as Ernst's Op. 1.

That publication makes up the bulk of this new release. Also included are two additional violin concertos (one for 2 violins), and a trumpet concerto.

Ernst thoroughly absorbed Vivaldi's style. The works are all in three brief movements, alternating fas-slow-fast. They also mimic Vivaldi's use of ritornello and extended sequences.

While the structure may have come from Italy, the music is original to Ernst. Some of these, through Bach's transcriptions, are already regarded as masterworks. The Op. 1, No. 1 Concerto is Bach's BWV 982; the Concerto in G major is BWV 592; the Concerto in C major is BWV 595.

Hearing these concertos in their original form is a revelation. To me, it's apparent that Bach didn't need to "fix-up" his source material. Ernst's concertos are both original in content and skillfully composed.

The Thüringer Bach Collegium perform on period instruments. The ensemble has a somewhat gritty sound I find completely authentic. There are also moments of great beauty, especially in the slow movements.

The ensemble delivers this music with all the energy and enthusiasm one imagines a teenager would invest in his work -- even one who was racing against time.

Audite's announced the ensemble's second release will be compositions by Johann Bernhard Bach, second cousin to Johann Sebastian. I'm in.